UGA SBDC strategic coaching fuels growth for LaGrange home care franchise

When Tammy Strickland's father—once a top executive of a global manufacturing firm—developed Alzheimer's, she struggled to find the in-home care he required.

So, she called in her sister, Debbie Thomason, with an idea: open their own home care franchise focused on compassion, quality and trust. When it came time to build the business behind that mission, they turned to the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (UGA SBDC) for guidance in creating their business systems.

Demand for the services offered by Acti-Kare Responsive In-Home Care in LaGrange grew quickly.

"I make it simple," she said. "We take care of people."
