THREE PRIORITIES FOR SMALL BUSINESS IN 2026

Forbes Business Council members share the top three priorities small businesses should focus on in 2026 to build resilience, drive growth and prepare for what's next.

By Forbes Business Council

Small businesses are the backbone of our economy. Focusing on the right priorities in 2026 can help you strengthen your business and seize new opportunities.

THREE PRIORITIES FOR SMALL BUSINESS IN 2026

1

DRIVE EFFICIENT, PROFITABLE GROWTH

Focus on strengthening operations, streamlining costs and improving processes to boost profitability. Smart growth—not just more growth—will set your business up for long-term success.

2

INVEST IN YOUR PEOPLE AND CULTURE

Attracting and retaining top talent remains a top challenge. Build a positive culture, offer growth opportunities and lead with purpose to create a team that drives your business forward.

3

EMBRACE TECHNOLOGY AND INNOVATION

Leverage the right tools and technology to work smarter, enhance customer experiences and stay competitive. Innovation doesn't have to be disruptive—it just has to be intentional.

FOCUS TODAY. GROW TOMORROW.

Prioritize what matters most and build a stronger business in 2026.

UGA SBDC helps Warner Robins agency strengthen operations, win major contracts

With guidance from the UGA Small Business Development Center, The Miner Agency strengthened its HR operations, earned federal certifications and secured major government contracts—fueling sustained growth.

Chrissy Miner has always believed that success comes from using every resource at her disposal. So when she set out to launch a full-service communications agency, one of her first calls was to the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (UGA SBDC).

“Our evolution has been a little unique,” Miner admitted. “Over time, we’ve built a business at the intersection of corporate communications, organizational support and mission-driven products — all focused on helping organizations move their work forward.
