Dade County Community Forest

A New Place for Families, Friends, and Future Generations to Enjoy the Outdoors

This project is a partnership between Dade County, Trust for Public Land, Georgia-Alabama Land Trust, Alliance for Dade, local partners, and Dade County community members.

What is a Community Forest?

A community forest is land that is protected and cared for by the community. Local residents help decide how the land is used and managed. It gives people a place to enjoy the outdoors while protecting clean water, wildlife, and the natural beauty of the area.

You Help Decide

This land is protected, but now the community gets to decide how it will be used and managed. Share your thoughts to help shape what this forest becomes.

Why Does It Matter?

Protect forests, wildlife, and clean water for our community.

Create new places to hike, explore, and enjoy the outdoors.

Provide opportunities for outdoor learning for children and families.

Support local jobs through tourism and outdoor recreation.

Create a lasting community resource that can be enjoyed for generations.

What matters most to you?

We Want to Hear From You!

- What do you want to see at the future community forest?
- What is important to you about your community?
- What questions do you have?

UGA SBDC strategic coaching fuels growth for LaGrange home care franchise

When Tammy Strickland's father—once a top executive of a global manufacturing firm—developed Alzheimer's, she struggled to find the in-home care he required.

So, she called in her sister, Debbie Thomason, with an idea: open their own home care franchise focused on compassion, quality and trust. When it came time to build the business behind that mission, they turned to the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (UGA SBDC) for guidance in creating their business systems.

"I make it simple," she said. "We take care of people."

Congratulations GNTC and President Popham

for being featured in the current issue of JAMES

MAGAZINE!

GEORGIA NORTHWESTERN TECH

A Pillar of Georgia's Workforce

Dr. Heidi Popham began her tenure at Georgia Northwestern Technical College in 1995. Throughout the years, she has served as director of institutional effectiveness and vice president of institutional effectiveness, eventually becoming executive vice president in 2016. She was named president of GNTC in 2019, and has overseen increases in enrollment, strengthened community relations, and enhanced student services. James recently caught up with Dr. Popham for an update on the college, and what the college means to the northwest Georgia area.

In your seven years as president what are some major accomplishments achieved?

During that time GNTC has expanded opportunities for students by growing high-demand workforce programs, strengthening partnerships with business and industry, and ensuring our programs align with the growing needs of northwest Georgia employers. We our facilities and equipment and expanding our program options.

We have also strengthened support services for our students, including our first-generation learners, military-connected families, dual enrollment and adult education students, while creating more pathways that help individuals earn credentials leading to meaningful careers. Whether through our academic programs or enhanced training more accessible and being responsive to our citizens.

Another accomplishment has been increasing our partnerships throughout the region. By working closely with our secondary school systems, other colleges, healthcare providers, manufacturers, small businesses, and community leaders, we have supported new industries and existing employers in creating a stronger workforce pipeline for northwest Georgia.

I am also incredibly proud of our college family. Our faculty and staff have embraced innovation, demonstrated resilience through extraordinary challenges, and remained committed to providing exceptional service to our students. Their dedication has allowed GNTC to continue fulfilling our mission of workforce development by supporting student success.

What are the most popular degree programs or career pathways offered at GNTC?
