UGA SBDC helps Georgia manufacturer Versatile Mold and Design reach new markets and milestones

In the small town of Rutledge, Georgia, a family-owned business is making a global impact, one precision mold at a time. Since 1998, Versatile Mold and Design has specialized in designing, building and maintaining high-precision molds for thermoset and thermoplastic materials. Founded by Robert Heusser and now led by Robert (Bob) Heusser Jr., and his siblings Tim, Frank and Suzanne, the company has earned a reputation for innovation, quality and reliability across a range of industries.

But even the most technically advanced companies need support to navigate growth, manage workforce challenges and evolve with market demands. That's where the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (UGA SBDC) came in.

"We kept getting asked by one of our biggest customers, Eaton Corporation, to put together a five-year business plan," said Versatile president Bob Heusser. "We didn't really know how to do that, and our accountant couldn't offer much support. Then someone told us about the University of Georgia and how they worked with businesses like ours. That's how we got started."

NORTHWEST GEORGIA WORKFORCE SUMMIT

Thank you to Dalton State and GNTC for co-hosting the first-ever Northwest Georgia Workforce Summit on August 22, 2015.

It was inspiring to come together and discuss the future, while celebrating Dalton State's $149 million economic impact and USG's commitment to meeting Georgia's workforce needs!

This event is just one way Dalton State is cultivating partnerships for the success of students and this region through its Vision 2050 Strategic plan. Some of the ways they are already achieving this include:

- Establishing articulation agreements with Georgia Northwestern Technical College & Georgia Highlands College
- Creating agreements with local K-12 systems to strengthen the pipeline for teachers & retain them in this region
- Expanding healthcare partnerships to increase capacity in those academic programs
