Golden Isles Family Healthcare: Building a community-center practice with UGA SBDC support

From the start, family nurse practitioner Bianca Pope envisioned creating a patient-centered medical practice that not only served her community but also fostered a positive workplace. To bring that vision to life, she turned to the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (UGA SBDC) for guidance and strategic support.

Located in Brunswick, Golden Isles Family Healthcare delivers compassionate, comprehensive care for families across Glynn County. Founded by Pope, the practice provides primary care services including preventative medicine, chronic disease management, weight loss support, family planning and general health visits.

““We serve families of all ages,” said Pope. “We do preventative medicine, management of chronic illnesses such as diabetes and high blood pressure, and episodic sick visits. My passion has always been prevention—helping people live healthier lives before serious illness develops.”
