From electrician to entrepreneur: UGA SBDC helps Neely Electrical Services power up for growth

In Savannah, Georgia, Neely Electrical Services LLC is lighting the way for industrial and commercial electrical contracting across southeast Georgia. Specializing in industrial electrical construction and maintenance, the union shop also offers commercial services and custom electrical solutions tailored to specific project needs.

Behind the company's rapid growth is a story of unexpected opportunity, bold decisions and the strategic guidance of the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (UGA SBDC).

(Owner Trey Neely began his career in the electrical industry straight out of high school in 2005, completing a five-year apprenticeship before becoming a journeyman electrician. In 2016, he joined Braddy Enterprises LLC, a union electrical contractor focused on the industrial market.

““The weird part about it for me was I met him once — the day I got hired,” Neely said. “Four years later, I’m sitting at a table and he’s telling me that he wants me to buy his company.
