Flying High: UGA SBDC helps helicopter parts company go global with e-commerce boost

When Sean Casey sought to expand his Atlanta-based, veteran-owned company Rotorcorp through e-commerce, he turned to his long-time consultant at the University of Georgia Small Business Development Center (UGA SBDC). Darrel Hulsey, director of the International Trade Center at the UGA SBDC, connected Casey with resources to assess his company's readiness for online international sales.

Five years later, Rotorcorp's sales revenues have doubled, its customer base has tripled, and it leads the industry in e-commerce sales, earning national recognition and awards.

Casey first approached the UGA SBDC in 2013, when he needed capital to support his start-up's export sales. Since then, he has worked with Hulsey on several trade-related issues and has attended UGA SBDC training. Rotorcorp is now the world's largest distributor of parts for Robinson helicopters.

"At each point of our business's expansive growth, the SBDC has served as a touchstone for the resources we've used, whether it's the EXIM Bank or the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) or even state and local resources through the Georgia Department of Economic Development (GDEcD)," Casey said.

Unlocking Capital: An Owner's Guide to Funding a Small Business

Are you ready to turn the key and unlock the capital your small business needs to thrive?

This course is designed for small business owners and entrepreneurs seeking to understand and access various funding options. We will discuss the ins and outs of the different types of capital, including SBA-guaranteed loans, traditional bank loans, non-traditional funding sources, equity, and little-known specialty lending programs, and weigh the pros and cons of each. This course will help owners think like a lender and ensure their business is lender-ready.
